

BIOGRAPHIES
of the Participants of the International Conference “Women of the Mountains”

Abdrisaev Baktybek

Baktybek Abdrisaev from February 11th, 1997 until March 28th, 2005, served as Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Kyrgyz Republic to USA and Canada. After graduating from the Bishkek Polytechnic Institute as an engineer with degree in computer sciences in 1980, he pursued his graduate studies and obtained a Ph.D. degree in Applied Physics from the Institute of Electronics, Academy of Sciences of Belarus (1990). His professional career includes scientific activities at Bishkek Polytechnic Institute and Institute of Physics, National Academy of Sciences of Kyrgyzstan, when in 1990 he held the position of Associate Professor.

His diplomatic career began in 1992 with his appointment to the position of expert in the International Affairs Department of the Presidential Administration and further promotion to its directorship in 1993. Dr. Abdrisaev was also a Member of the Kyrgyz Parliament from March 1995 until March 2000.

Since August 1st, 2005 Dr. Baktybek Abdrisaev is working as Distinguished Visiting Professor at the Department of History and Political Science at Utah Valley State College, USA. He is an author of the book “Kyrgyzstan’s Voice in Washington,” Global Scholarly Publications & Utah Valley State College, 2005, one in press and has more than eighty articles related to both science of applied optics as well as international relations and diplomacy.

His Excellency Mr. Acharya Madhu Raman

His Excellency Mr. Madhu Raman Acharya is the Ambassador / Permanent Representative of Nepal to the United Nations, since August 2005. Acharya has been elected Chairman of the Fourth Committee (Special Political and Decolonization) for the sixty-first session of the UN General Assembly (2006-07). Prior to his current appointment, Mr. Acharya was his country’s Foreign Secretary from 2001 to 2005 and, before that, he served as Ambassador to Bangladesh (1998-2001). In 1997-1998, he was Deputy Chief of Mission in New Delhi, India, and, in 1996-1997, served as Joint Secretary in Nepal’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs. During the 1990s, he participated in United Nations missions in Cambodia (1992-93), South Africa (1994) and Liberia (1997). Mr. Acharya began his career in 1982 as Assistant Lecturer at his alma mater -- Tribhuvan University in Kathmandu. In 1983, he was appointed a Section Officer in the Ministry of Home Affairs, where he remained until 1990. He joined the Ministry of Finance in 1990 as Assistant Secretary, and from 1993 to 1996 he was Under-Secretary of Finance. He holds Master degrees in science and public administration from Tribhuvan University and is the author of some books including “Nepal: Culture Shift!” published in 2001 and “Business of Bureaucracy” published in 2002. Born on 24 February 1957 in Udayapur, Nepal, he is married to Dr. Geeta Sharma Acharya, who is also assistance professor of biology in Nepal’s Tribhuvan University. They have two children.

Ackah Rose

Rose Ackah, Executive Director of Women and Youth Forum for Sustainable Development, is a Gender Activist and a Community Development Officer. Her work includes Project Management, Micro-Credit Management, Human Resource Development in Alternative Livelihood Skills and Municipal Revenue Mobilization.

As the Executive Director for the WYFSD, she has been managing projects on building capacities of women in rural and deprived communities in Ghana in Alternative Livelihood and Income Generating Skills through training and provision of access to relevant equipment, tools and information.

She has also worked with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations Volunteers as a United Nation Volunteer (UNV) for the past five years as a Domestic Development Officer in Tanzania to improve the livelihoods of women, and a Revenue Mobilization Officer to improve municipal revenue base and management in the Tema Municipality Assembly (TMA) in Ghana

She recently coordinated the development of a TMA/UNDP/UNV follow-up project proposal on providing support to improve municipal revenue in TMA.

She worked for 24 years with the Ghana Education Service as a Senior Superintendent of Education.

Aidaraliev Asylbek

Asylbek Aidaraliev, M.D., Institute of Medical and Biological Problems (Moscow, Russia) 1979. Current position of him is the President of International University of Kyrgyzstan and Official Representative of the President of the Kyrgyz Republic on Sustainable development of Mountain Regions of the Kyrgyz Republic. His research areas are Applied Human Physiology; Policy of Education and Science. Aidaraliev has issued more than 200 publications. These are some of his publications: Medico-Biological and Social Aspects of Human Vital Activity in the North. In: Arctic research - Advances and prospects (1990), part 2, Leningrad, pp. 338-372.; Higher Education Reforms in Kyrgyzstan: perspective of introduction of USA universities experiences. "Problems of Central Asian Higher Schools Integration into International Education"(Rectors Seminar of Central Asian Higher Schools), Bishkek, 1997; Problems of Quality Evaluation in Higher Education. "Problems of Effective Quality of Higher Education in Context of Socio-Economic Transformation in Central Asia" (Rectors Seminar of Central Asian Higher Schools), Bishkek, 1998; The Processes of Democratization and Legal Aspects of the World Economic Activity. "Democratic processes in Central Asia: Experience and Perspectives", Bishkek, 1999.

Aitkulova Elmira

Elmira Aitkulova is a leading specialist on management of the Prime Minister's office of the Kyrgyz Republic. She has wide-range experience on management of social service for the population. During last couple of years she achieved a number of successes in professional carrier: she has now extensive experience of work with the Members of the Kyrgyz Parliament; she supervised a number of international and country-level events. She represented also her department in the organizing committee for the preparations to the Mountain Summit in Kyrgyzstan. She is an author of several scientific publications on social work and psychology and was a co-author of annual reports on situation of women and children in Kyrgyzstan. She has a number of awards for organizing effective work of the Prime Minister's office. Married, mother of two children.

Akmatalieva Tcholpon

Graduate of the Department of Philosophy and Economy at Kazakh State University (1985), she worked as the Instructor (1985-1987) at the Department of Political Science and Professor (1991-1995) at the Department of Philosophy at Kyrgyz Technical University (Bishkek).

She defended her dissertation on Women Issues at Moscow State University (1991). She worked as an Expert of the International Institute of Strategic Studies in Bishkek (1995-1996) and attended College of Strategic Studies and Defense Economy in Marshall Center (Garmish-Partenkirchen, Germany) in 1996.

She wrote several articles on Women's movement and Democracy in Kyrgyzstan and post soviet countries. She was actively involved in number of local and international Conferences in Central Asia, Russia and USA.

Currently she is a visiting scholar at the Women's Research Institute at Brigham Young University, Utah.

Anderson Jeni

Jeni Anderson is a junior student at UVSC. She has a great interest in world affairs. She was raised in Saudi Arabia and has been returning back and forth since she moved to the United States. Her father is still stationed there as an employee of Aramco, the kingdom's oil company. In writing this paper, she will be not only writing from experience, but from a woman's point of view. She went to an international school for the majority of her life and the stories from her friends are endless on the treatment of women. In writing this paper she has learned more about the country she calls home.

Armstrong Melanie

Melanie Armstrong is a PhD candidate in the Department of American Studies at the University of New Mexico. Her meandering academic career has taken her through studies of Polish women in mass media, Smokey Bear, National Parks, and bioterrorism, while side trips into the "real world" have included work as a park ranger and pastry chef. Her work considers the social origins of nature, science, and the environment, attending particularly to the influences of gender, race and class in shaping perceptions of the natural world. She has particularly tried to integrate her experiences working for six years with the National Park Service into her academic pursuits, recognizing National Parks as a critical site of American identity and also a gendered space. With the time she should have spent writing her dissertation, she wrote Gingerbread Tracks and Pine Needle Pasta, a cookbook integrating the cultural history of Yellowstone National Park with recipes collected from the park, including the many women of the past and present who call Yellowstone home. Recently, her focus has shifted to the critical role of science and scientific practice in constructing “nature,” and her dissertation on biological terrorism takes this question into the contemporary American situation to further consider how perceptions of nature shape public and private lives.

Bahuguna Anjali

Anjali Bahuguna is a Professor of Economics in H.N.B. Garhwal University Srinagar, Garhwal, and Uttaranchal, India. She is Ph.D from Meerut University (1979). Her work encompasses, Science & technology related issues for mountain women, gender empowerment & human development & rural development. Most recently, she presented a paper on ‘Rural Community Empowerment in India: Some Issues’ at the 4th International Rural Network Conference, June 19-24, 2005, South West Virginia Education Center Abingdon, Virginia U.S.A. and contributed a paper on ‘Rural Poverty & Anti Poverty programmes in India. A Review (17-18 February, 2007, in the International Seminar on structure of Poverty & Public Policy with special reference to SAARC & other capital poor countries at M. G. Kashi Vidyapith, Varanasi (U.P.) India. She will be performing research this summer in the area on women empowerment in the mountain region of Himalayas.

Ballif-Spanvill Bonnie

Dr. Bonnie Ballif-Spanvill is a professor of psychology and director of the Women's Research Institute at Brigham Young University. After twenty-five years as a professor and department chair in the graduate school of Fordham University at Lincoln Center in New York City, she returned to her alma mater in 1994. Her research publications and papers on human emotion in motivation for learning earned her Fellow status in both the American Psychological Association in 1984 and the Association for Psychological Science in 1987. Her motivation model identifies interactions between affective states and cognitive functioning in order to determine conditions most conducive to accelerated information processing and performance improvement.

Dr. Ballif-Spanvill is currently using her understanding of motivation to address development problems caused by illiteracy and poverty in the villages of Ouelessebouyou, Mali. She is also using her model of motivation to break intergenerational cycles of domestic violence, reduce violence in children's conflicts, and curtail aggression between peoples.

Bonner Elena

Elena Bonner was born on February 15, 1923, in Merv, Turkmenistan. She grew up in the restless, cosmopolitan atmosphere of the Hotel Luxe on Gorky Street, which lodged important foreign Communists working in Moscow. She finished high school in Leningrad, volunteered as a nurse when war broke out, was wounded twice, and was honorably discharged in 1945 as a lieutenant and a disabled veteran. After two years of intensive treatment, the loss of vision caused by her wartime injury was brought under control, and she enrolled in the First Leningrad Medical Institute. After graduation, she worked as a pediatrician, a district doctor, and a free-lance author and editor.

She mingled with the generation of writers and artists who had been inspired by the post-Stalin thaw, but she also helped prisoners and their families. Elena met Andrei Sakharov in October 1970 when both were attending the trial of human rights activists in Kaluga. By August 1971 friendship turned into love, and in January 1972 they formally registered their marriage. She took early retirement as a disabled war veteran and devoted herself to Sakharov, serving as his chief of staff and secretary as well as cook. She also became Sakharov's ambassador to the world at large. She represented him at the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize ceremony in Oslo; reported on her visits to Italy, France, and America; and after his January 1980 exile, served as his sole link with Moscow and the West until May 1984, when she too was barred from leaving Gorky. In August 1984, she was tried by a Gorky court, found guilty of "anti-soviet agitation" and sentenced to exile.

But a love story deserves a happy ending - on December 15, 1986, a telephone was installed in their Gorky apartment. The next day it rang for the first time, and Mikhail Gorbachev personally asked the Sakharovs to return to Moscow. They arrived at the Chkalov Street apartment on December 23, 1986. The curtain was raised for the next act. Since Andrei Sakharov's death in December 1989, Elena Bonner has continued the campaign for democracy and human rights in Russia. She joined the defenders of the Russian parliament during the attempted coup of August 1991, and lent her support to Yeltsin during the constitutional crisis of 1993, but in 1994, in protest against the war in Chechnya, she resigned from the Presidential Human Rights Commission. She writes frequently for the Russian and American press on issues of human rights and democracy in the former Soviet Union. She has campaigned tirelessly in defense of self-determination for the disputed region of Nagorno-Karabakh and for all the peoples of the former Soviet Union.

Dr. Bonner has published a number of books in the United States and in Russia.

Bradford Joel

Joel Bradford is Assistant Professor of Environmental Management at Utah Valle State College. He is a graduate student at the University of Utah in Anthropology. He takes UVSC students twice a year to participate in humanitarian sustainable development projects in Mexico. He has been involved in many clean water and micro-credit projects. He has just completed a video documentary titled "Learning Through International Service" He was also involved in the production of "Small Fortunes" which aired nationally on PBS last year. His current research is on the use of slow and rapid sand filters to clean water in small developing villages

Bridwell Ernest R.

"Ric" Bridwell recently completed a Visiting Fellowship at the University of Montana in the Central and Southwest Asia Department, Missoula, Montana and consults with universities, state government, embassies and the military concerning relations with the Kyrgyz Republic.

Mr. Bridwell retired from the United States Army in 2004 after serving thirty-seven years in Infantry and Aviation specialties. He is qualified in three Army Helicopters and the recipient of numerous military awards from the United States and Kyrgyz Military. His last six years of service were in the position of Coordinator of the Montana –Kyrgyzstan State Partnership Program.

Mr. Bridwell has made nineteen trips to Central Asia and coordinated numerous visits by Kyrgyz Delegates to the U.S. to further military and civilian contacts for past and future opportunities and to cooperate in many areas of mutual interest.

Mr. Bridwell has a Bachelor of Arts, Liberal Arts with an area of concentration in Political Psychology through Carroll College and the University of New York Regents College and is the graduate of many military schools to include the Warrant Officer Advanced and Senior Courses.

Ric is married with two sons and three grandsons.

Brimkulov Ulan

Ulan Brimkulov is Professor in computer science and information technologies and Dean of computer technologies department, Kyrgyz National University. Currently he is a Fulbright Visiting Scholar at the University of Michigan. He holds his Ph.D (1978) and Doctor of Science Degrees (1992) from the Moscow Energy University. He is a Member of ICT Council under the President of the Kyrgyz Republic. His most recent publications: Developing Distance Education at the Kyrgyz National University (2005), Computer and Internet (2004), Information Technologies in the Kyrgyz Republic (2004), Human Resources Development on the basis of Information Technologies (2004), Development of Human Resources in the field of Information and Communication Technologies (2001).

Brinton Carl

Carl Brinton is an undergraduate student of Asian studies and economics at Brigham Young University. He has worked for the past year with the WomanStats Project, which is compiling a database on the status of women that is the largest in the world. Containing more than 240 variables and over 170 countries, the project was just accepted by the United Nations as an important partner in the Inter-Agency Network on Women and Gender Equality (IANWGE). On the project, Brinton has specialised on researching women's access to divorce and the disparity between laws protecting women and the realities of violence against women. Brinton will be interning for the International Trade Centre in Geneva, Switzerland this spring helping exporting sectors of developing countries become more competitive on the global market. Later this summer, he will also be interning for the World Health Organisation in Manila, Philippines as it seeks to assess the impacts of its programmes and policies on Asia's women.

Boyani Lenah

Lenah Boyani, is a home economics graduate currently doing Msc in Community Resource Management at Kenyatta University. Her work has been teaching Home science and biology in high school in Kenya, nutritional counseling, Monitoring and Evaluation and currently venturing in the management of family and community resources. She is currently doing internship with Winrock International- African Women

Leaders in Agriculture and Environment Network (AWLAE-NET) Regional office in Nairobi and a volunteer doing Market Research for Centre for Affordable Water and Sanitation Technology in Canada did one for India and currently doing one for Zambia. She will be conducting research in Nairobi's informal settlement starting March to May 2007.

Butler Danielle

Dr. Butler is the Honorary Consul General of the Kyrgyz Republic in Utah and is the Chair of the Organizing Committee of the Women of the Mountains conference. Although retired, she remains active in international women's issues. Dr. Butler was the president of several women's organizations in the United States and Canada, and has worked extensively in humanitarian and education issues. She has traveled extensively throughout the world on behalf of women and children.

Dr. Butler is the mother of seven children and 34 grandchildren. She believes that the strength of the home, and the mother, will determine the strength of any nation.

Butler R.E. "Rusty"

Dr. Butler is the Associate Vice President for international affairs and Director of the Utah-Russia Institute at Utah Valley State College. In addition, he is the Honorary Consul General of the Russian Federation in Utah and President of the Utah Consular Corps which represents all foreign consulates in Utah (24).

Dr. Butler's career started as a professor of linguistics in Canada from which he branched into private business in western Canada and the United States. He later served as a senior staff member in the U.S. Senate and the Reagan White House before entering management with the Boeing Corporation in its military operations. He returned to the academic world at UVSC in 1992.

Dr. Butler was awarded the medal of merit by the Russian Foreign Ministry and has published in the Ministry's journal, International Affairs. He is an accomplished triathlete, cyclist, marathon runner and plays ice hockey in his spare time.

Christian Becky

Becky Christian, PhD, RN, is an Associate Professor and Division Chair, Health Systems and Community-Based Care at The University of Utah College of Nursing. Dr. Christian is a pediatric nurse researcher with a Ph.D. in Nursing from the University of Texas at Austin and an MSN in Parent-Child Nursing from the University of Missouri-Columbia. Her research and clinical expertise are focused on children and adolescents with chronic illness and family adaptation to chronic illness. She has used mixed methods designs to explore how children and adolescents live with their chronic illness, as well as how families adapt to and manage their child's chronic illness. Based on several qualitative studies of children's perceptions of growing up with Cystic Fibrosis, her intervention study funded by the National Institute of Nursing Research, National Institutes of Health (R01 NR04576) focused on building life skills in with children with Cystic Fibrosis and was published in Nursing Research (2006). An integrative review of research about children and adolescents growing up with chronic illness was published in the Annual Review of Nursing Research (2003); and a study focused on the health of caregivers of children with disabilities was published in Child: Care, Health and Development (2006). Currently, Dr. Christian is conducting a study of caregiver functioning and children with Cerebral Palsy in collaboration with Nancy Murphy, MD, Department of Pediatrics (funded by Primary Children's Medical Foundation). In addition, Dr. Christian and colleagues from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have an intervention study (R01) targeting African-American families taking control of their diabetes (under review by NIH).

Davis Ethan

Ethan Davis is currently a student majoring in psychology at UVSC. He was previously pursuing a degree in communications/journalism. With the combined knowledge of research skills in both fields and with a desire to find the reasons why people think and act the way that they do especially in regards to war, he embarked on the journey to find truth, especially the truth concerning the recent war and continuing struggles in Afghanistan. As part of this pursuit for truth he decided to take a course in Cross-Cultural Psychology. He hopes that through his own study efforts and the combined studies, opinions and experiences of the other students in this course that he will be able to find clarity on the recent conflicts in Afghanistan.

Day Candra

Candra Day is co-founder and President of Vista 360°, an international organization dedicated to fostering cooperation among mountain communities around the world, using the arts and cultural exchange to build lasting relationships. Vista 360° has an active partnership program in northern Kyrgyzstan and in the Mt. Fuji region of Japan and is beginning a new program in the southern Andes region.

Day was educated at Reed College and Antioch University. She has been a non-profit management consultant since 1980, working in the San Francisco Bay Area and in Wyoming in the fields of arts, education, immigrant rights and community design. She has been a presenter of multi-cultural arts since 1985 and has assisted with the start-up of several arts and arts education organizations. She also assists with the start-up of charter schools for Native Americans, most recently on the Wind River Indian Reservation. Day has served as Executive Director for the Jackson Hole Center for the Arts, the San Francisco Arts Education Foundation and the Hispanic Cultural Festival. She received the Wyoming Governor's Arts Award in 2007.

de Groh Teresa

Teresa de Groh, Chair of the Wyoming Council for Women's Issues (WCWI), is a planner with a Master of Urban Planning and Policy from the University of Illinois at Chicago (1987). Ms. de Groh has worked in community planning, focusing on small town and rural communities, since 1985 and served most recently as a planner for Teton County, Wyoming from 1989 to 2003. She has published articles on planning issues, made presentations at conferences on open space planning, and obtained significant federal grant monies for planning projects. Ms. de Groh formed her own company in 2003, de Groh Consulting LLC, but spends most of her time doing volunteer work with WCWI, the Teton Emergency Responders Association (TERA), and prehospital emergency care—she is an Emergency Medical Technician and Firefighter with the Jackson Hole Fire/EMS Department in Jackson, Wyoming.

Djusupova Zamira

Ms Zamira Djusupova, independent consultant and researcher in the area of ICT for Development (ICTD), has a Diploma with honours in Automated Management Systems from Moscow State Bauman Technical University and Diploma with honours in Finance and Credit from Kyrgyz State National University. For several years she was involved as IT Manager in different projects financed by the Government, World Bank and other organizations. Since 2005 Ms. Djusupova was contracted by UNDP in Kyrgyzstan as ICTD coordinator within the Democratic Governance Programme. Her work is devoted to fostering the use of ICTs in Kyrgyzstan to make easier access to information and knowledge for citizens and better governance. She is active in workshops and meetings regarding ICT for development and e-Government. Ms.Djusupova presented two accepted papers at the International Conference on Politics and Information Systems: 1) Case study: Kyrgyzstan's experience in promoting Open Source for National ICT development; 2) “Development of Kyrgyz National Land Information System as a part of National strategy ICT for development of Kyrgyz Republic. The conference was organized by International Institute of Informatics and Systemics in Orlando, Florida, USA in 2004. The first paper was selected as the best one among the other 10% of papers and was published in the Systemics, Cybernetics and Informatics. Recently she completed her PhD thesis work “Development Methods and Models of Multipurpose Management Information System on Immovable Property in Kyrgyzstan” and presented it to the Scientific Committee at the International Academy on System Research in Moscow.

Dreyfuss Hermine

Hermine Dreyfuss is a visual ethnographer and photographer with a degree in American and Far Eastern Studies from Cornell University. Since 1985, she has specialized in the work of traditional textile designers and producers in Asia, the Americas, Europe, Africa and Turkey. In 1992, she began documenting the changes since independence in the former Soviet Union with an emphasis on the Central Asian republics. Ms. Dreyfuss' images have been published in a variety of books and magazines. She has presented cultural exhibits and educational workshops in the UK, Australia, Central Asia and throughout the US, most recently on Uzbek embroideries at the East-West Center in Honolulu. Ms Dreyfuss was a major contributor to the Smithsonian Silk Road Festival in 2002. In 2006, the Congressional Black Caucus Education Braintrust of the U.S Congress presented Ms. Dreyfuss the Congressional Beacon of Hope Award for her work with children and education. She is a design and marketing consultant to several Central Asian and European artisans and businesswomen.

Duku Moses Hensley

Moses Hensley Duku, research scientist, obtained a MSc. from the University of Science and Technology at Kumasi, Ghana. He is the elected representative of the African Mountain Forum on Mountain Forum Board and Focal Point, Ghana, Mountain Partnership.

His work encompasses provision of scientific information, technologies for exploitation of renewable feedstocks, clean technologies, plastic waste management, and transfer of technology to micro, small and medium scale enterprises.

Duku was responsible for climate change, desertification, forest landscape restoration and wetlands management while at the Ministry of Environment & Science, Ghana. He participated in both the first and second Global Meetings of Members of the Mountain Partnership, and e-consultations which developed a Global Action Plan for sustainable mountain development.

From 2003 - 4, he coordinated Ghana's component of PDF-A and B phases of regional project on "Removing Barriers to Invasive Plant Management and Prevention in Africa" involving five countries, namely, Ghana, Uganda, Ethiopia, Zambia and Kenya.

Duku also presented papers at International Centre for Science and High Technology (ICS-UNIDO) Expert Group Meetings on "Clean Technologies, Environmentally Degradable Plastics Technologies for exploitation of renewable feedstocks and waste valorisation", and at an international conference on "Renewable Resources and Renewable Energy" in Trieste, Italy.

He is both a member of ICS-UNIDO regional task force on "plastic waste management", and sub-regional network on "technology management and transfer".

Embry Jessie

Jessie Embry, associate director of the Charles Redd Center and associate research professor, Brigham Young University, has published seven books and over 100 articles on Utah, Mormon, and western American history topics. Her presentation will examine how Mormon leaders taught girls traditional values. She is working on a manuscript on Mormon sports and dance tournaments. She plans on an oral history program on the Mormon family home evening program.

England Lynn

Lynn England, professor emeritus, is a sociologist with a Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh (1971). He was on the faculty at Brigham Young University for 36 years and served as Chair of the Sociology Department. His work encompasses the nature of rural communities and the ways in which communities are able to sustain themselves in the face of the forces of globalization and modernity. He has concentrated this work on communities in the Intermountain West of the United States and Chihuahua, Mexico. In addition, England has been involved in research on rural poverty, especially among the Raramuri peoples of Mexico. England's recent writing has focused on the sociological contributions of W. E. B. Du Bois, the effects of modernity and globalization on community, and poverty in Mexico. His current research involves analyses of the lives of Raramuri immigrants to urban centers and a longitudinal analysis of change in three communities in Utah and Colorado. England serves on committees in the Rural Sociological Society and has been panel manager for the USDA competitive grants program.

Englehardt Elaine E.

Elaine E. Englehardt is Special Assistant to the President and a Distinguished Professor of Philosophy at Utah Valley State College. She has taught ethics, philosophy and communication classes at UVSC for the past thirty years. Currently her assignments include teaching, acting as federal liaison, overseeing the Sleeping Rainbow Ranch field station, and working with the nationally award winning Center for the Study of Ethics. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Utah in Communication and Philosophy. As Special Assistant to the President, Englehardt oversees all federal appropriations.

For the past twenty years, she has written and directed seven national grants. Four large grants are in ethics education from FIPSE, the Fund for the Improvement of Post Secondary Education (Department of Education). She recently completed a three book series with Harcourt College Publishers in Ethics: The Organizational Self and Ethical Conduct: Sunlit Virtue and Shadowed Resistance, and Interpersonal Communication Ethics: Friends, Intimates, Sexuality, Marriage and Family with Harcourt College Publishers in 2001 and Principled Media Ethics, with Wadsworth Publishers in 2002. She earlier published Ethics and Life with Donald Schmeltokopf through Wm C. Brown Publishers. She has additionally published numerous articles.

She has been involved in extensive volunteer service. She is a member of the Utah State Judicial Conduct Commission. She also served with Utah Humanities Council for seven years, two years as chair; and with the Utah County Planning and Zoning Commission for ten years, seven years as chair.

Fernández Consuelo

Consuelo Fernández, Architect-Urbanist, is the President of the VAMOS BOLIVIA Association (2005). Her work focuses on: support to the communities and municipalities with high levels of poverty in Bolivia; development of multidisciplinary projects to improve the quality of life; and to support to the social sector in the learning processes to develop capacities and potential among the population. After she was a United Nations National Volunteer in the “Youths against Poverty Program” in her own country, she founded an Association to fight against poverty for the purpose to continue the work in supporting communities and to motivate many people in this way.

Frederickson Kristine Wardle

Kristine Wardle Frederickson is an instructor in the history, women’s studies, honors and religion departments at Brigham Young University. She is a PhD candidate in History at the University of Utah. Her dissertation, “Agency, Atonement and Prayer: Josephine Butler and Christianity in British Victorian Feminism,” details women’s rights campaigns against state-regulated prostitution and human trafficking. She was the recipient of a Graduate Research Fellowship Award. She has written and presented papers on material culture, Evangelicalism, and perceptions of domesticity in nineteenth-century Britain. She is currently working on an article, "The Power of Millennial Eschatology in the British Victorian Feminist Movement."

Garcia Myrna Bencomo

Myrna Garcia Bencomo, professor at the Universidad Autonoma de Chihuahua, is Director of the School of Continuing Education. She has her doctorate from the Universidad Nacional Autonoma de Mexico. Garcia Bencomo has been a leader in promoting higher education for the Raramuri students in Chihuahua, Mexico. She is a skilled ethnographer and has conducted numerous interviews with the Raramuri women of the region. She has conducted studies of women, both indigenous and mestizo, in her home state of Chihuahua. Garcia Bencomo teaches classes in education and English to teachers seeking post-graduate degrees at the Universidad Autonoma de Chihuahua. Her current research involves analyses of the lives of Raramuri immigrants to urban centers.

Ganbold Gonchig

Mr. Gonchig GANBOLD graduated from the Mongolian State University as Bachelor of Science and the State Institute of International Relations in Moscow, completed Foreign Service Program at the University College in Oxford, studied at the Institute of Advanced Studies on International Relations in Geneva and at the Asia Pacific Security Studies Center on Hawaii.

As foreign service officer he served both at headquarters and foreign missions of the Mongolia external relations since 1980 and also at the Office of National Security Council of Mongolia in 2003-2004. He specialized in political diplomacy and international security. He contributed number of articles to periodicals and translated half dozen books into Mongolian. His area of interests are politics, environmental and gender issues.

As the Consul General and Counselor of the Mongolian Embassy in Washington DC since August 2006 G. Ganbold has been giving more emphasis on improving the public awareness of Mongolia in the USA, to getting closely acquainted with its multifaceted life and reinvigorating bilateral exchanges between the two countries at all level. Currently he is Vice President of the newly opened Mongolian School Governing Board in Great Washington DC area.

Gehrenbeck David L.

As country desk officer for the Kyrgyz Republic at the U.S. Department of State, David Gehrenbeck coordinates overall U.S. government policy on the Kyrgyz Republic and serves as primary Washington contact for the U.S. Embassy in Bishkek and the Kyrgyzstani Embassy in Washington. He joined the State Department as a foreign service officer in 2000. He has served as a watchstander at the Operations Center; as political-economic, consular, and security officer at the U.S. Consulate General in Melbourne, Australia; as economic-commercial and assistance coordination officer at the U.S. Embassy in Yerevan, Armenia; and as assistant to the minister counselor for administration at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, Russia. He received his Ph.D. in Russian literature from Brown University and his B.A. in Russian literature from Swarthmore College and has taught Russian language, literature and culture at various levels. He is married and has three children.

Graney David W.

David W. Graney is currently a senior student at UVSC majoring in Political Science, having already completed an Associate of Arts Degree at UVSC in Political Science. He also completed one and a half years of undergraduate training at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. He worked as a U.S. House of Representatives Intern in the Office of Congressman John T. Doolittle in Washington, D.C. (2006) doing constituent liaison work and correspondence regarding defense, intelligence, budget, health care, and environmental issues. He worked before this as a CNN newsroom/Pentagon intern (2006) with the production of the "Situation Room" hosted by news anchor Wolf Blitzer, assisting in the research, development and dissemination of news regarding the United States national government and military. He also worked as a U.S. Senate Intern (2005) for the Office of Senator Orrin G. Hatch researching issues pertaining to current legislation specifically dealing with environmental, health, military, and intelligence issues. He handled press relations, met with lobbyists, attended congressional luncheons/receptions, attended senate committee hearings, and constituent relations. David was also involved in case work for which he received correspondence and analyzed, resolved, and elucidated to the constituent what was executed and accomplished regarding their case. Before these internships, he worked at UVSC as a Teaching Assistant for a professor in Psychology (2004-05).

Greenwood Donna

Donna Greenwood MSN, RN is an Associate Professor of Nursing at Carroll College in Helena Montana where she has taught for the past 25 years. She received her Bachelors Degree from Montana State University and Masters Degree in primary care nursing from the University of Portland, Portland Oregon. Her primary teaching responsibilities and interest are in community and public health nursing. Greenwood's interest in prevention, health promotion and health disparities among populations in frontier regions of Montana and Alaska led to her sabbatical experiences traveling these states to hear the stories of public health nurses committed to meeting the health needs of high-risk populations.

Halvorson Sarah J.

Sarah J. Halvorson is an Associate Professor in the Department of Geography at The University of Montana. She earned her B.A. from St. Olaf College (1990) in Northfield, Minnesota and earned her Ph.D. at the University of Colorado at Boulder (2000). Dr. Halvorson's teaching and research interests span several areas including: water resources; gender geography; environmental hazards; mountain communities of Central Asia and the Caucasus; and women and Islam. From 1990 to 1992 she served as a Peace Corps

Volunteer in Chad, Central Africa working in the areas of rural water supplies and community development. Between 1994 to 1998 she carried out over 16 months of ethnographic fieldwork in remote mountain communities in the Karakoram of Northern Pakistan. Since 2001 she has conducted field studies in the Republic of Georgia, the Royal Kingdom of Bhutan, Kyrgyzstan, and Tajikistan. She has published her work in book chapters and articles in journals such as The Professional Geographer, The Geographical Review, Mountain Research and Development, Health and Place, and the Encyclopedia of Women and Islamic Cultures. Currently, she is directing a U.S. Department of Education-funded textbook project that is focused on the regional geography of Central Asia and the Caucasus.

Hamilton Jennifer

Jennifer Hamilton is a graduate student in the Department of Geography at The University of Montana. Her research and training in the fields of geography and zoology has taken her to Mexico, Greenland, and most recently to the earthquake-affected region of Pakistan-administered Kashmir. Jennifer's interests are earthquake hazards and gender dimensions of hazard preparedness and response. Her thesis, based on two field expeditions to the earthquake zone, is titled "Rebuilding in the Midst of Disaster: An Assessment of the Structural and Societal Responses to the 2005 Kashmir Earthquake." Upon graduation Jennifer aims to continue her hazards-related research and professional work.

Hassas Safia

Safia Hassas is a journalist with bachelor for the Kabul University (1993). She is working with Radio Free Europe Radio liberty in Kabul. She uses to work with B.B.C radio. Most of her duties are to collect news, reports especially on Afghan refugees, IDPs (internal displace people) and women activities across the country.

During the Taliban era, Safia had studied English language by herself and taught in an underground course for young ladies in Kabul.

She is currently working on several issues like radio packages on self burning cases among Afghan women and women's life among nomad (Kochi) communities.

Safia is also a poet and most of her poems are reflecting Afghan women's desire and problems.

Heaton Tim

Tim Heaton, professor of Sociology at Brigham Young University, is a sociologist with a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin (1979). His work is primarily in the area of demography and demographic trends. His recent research has focused on issues dealing with women and children's health and welfare in Bolivia and poverty in Mexico. He has also been involved in demographic analyses of membership of the Latter-Day Saints Church. Heaton's writing emphasizes family and religious trends in a variety of international settings including Africa, Indonesia, and Latin America. He has completed extensive research and writings on marriage dissolution and marital satisfaction in interracial marriages. His current research involves analyses of the lives of Raramuri immigrants to urban centers.

The Honorable Gary Richard Herbert

Gary Richard Herbert is Utah's sixth Lieutenant Governor and was elected on November 2, 2004. Prior to his election as Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Herbert served 14 years on the Utah County Commission, nine years as its chairman. As Lieutenant Governor, and at the discretion of Governor Jon M. Huntsman, Jr., Mr. Herbert leads state efforts concerning homeland security, transportation, water and rural affairs issues. He is also utilizing his background in local government to serve citizens throughout the state.

A former President of the Utah Association of Realtors, Mr. Herbert's public and private sector service has consistently required him to work with diverse groups and interests. Mr. Herbert has also served as the President of the Utah Association of Counties, where he was named as Utah's Outstanding County Commissioner and County Elected Official. He is also the recipient of the National Outstanding Republican County Elected Official of the Year award.

Gary Richard Herbert was born in American Fork, Utah and raised in Orem by parents Duane and Carol Herbert. He is married to Jeanette Snelson Herbert. Together, they own and operate a day-care center in Utah County. The Herbert's have six children and seven grandchildren.

Horton Terry

Terry Horton is a lawyer by training and a nonprofit manager. She holds a B.A. degree from the University of Texas at Austin and a J.D. degree from Lewis & Clark Law School in Portland, Oregon. Ms. Horton works as a nonprofit consultant for The Foraker Group – a nonprofit with the core purpose of strengthening the nonprofit sector in Alaska. She worked previously for the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, where she consulted with nonprofit organizations in Kyrgyzstan and Russia. Prior to her work with The Foraker Group, she served as Executive Director of Habitat for Humanity – Anchorage. Ms. Horton is experienced in nonprofit management, planned giving, program design and implementation, grant writing and training.

Hudson Valeria M.

Valeria M. Hudson is a professor of political science at Brigham Young University, having taught previously at Northwestern and Rutgers University. Her areas of research include national security affairs, foreign policy analysis, and gender in international relations, and she is the author of numerous journal articles and books. Her latest book (with Andrea Den Boer), entitled Bare Branches: The Security Implications of Asia's Surplus Male Population and published by MIT Press, won the Association of American Publishers Award for best book in political science in 2004, as well as the Otis Dudley Duncan Award for best book in social demography that year. Hudson is also recipient of the Karl G. Maeser Excellence in Teaching Award, served as president of the Foreign Policy Analysis Section of the International Studies Association, and directed the graduate program in International Relations at the David M. Kennedy Center for eight years. Dr. Hudson now heads an interdisciplinary research team constructing what is already the most comprehensive database on the status of women cross-nationally. Already over 50% complete, when finished it will cover over 200 variables for 179 nations with populations greater than 100,000 persons. Variables include those relating to women's health, security, education, legal status, and human rights, among others.

Iskhakova Sarvar

Sarvar Iskhakova, the Teacher of economy from the Samarkand State University of Uzbekistan. She is coordinator of the Samarkand Resource Center. She carries out researches on social sciences. She has many publications on questions of social insurance, social protection, and also on innovational methods of teaching. She is written the book in the co-authorship «Social economy ». She conducts researches on gender problems. She participated in the project «The Gender and education».

Ismailova Dinara

Dinara Ismailova is an exchange student studying economics at Carroll College in Helena, Montana. She was selected from a highly competitive pool of candidates to receive a scholarship from the Eurasian Undergraduate Exchange Program (UGRAD), a program funded by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the US Department of State and administered by IREX (International Research and Exchanges Board). Dinara is studying at Bishkek Humanities University in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan. During the “Women of the Mountains” Conference she will be giving a presentation regarding a very controversial issue in Kyrgyzstan today: Bride Kidnapping.

Jensen Sachi

Sachi Jensen is a graduate student at Brigham Young University pursuing a Master's Degree in Sociology. Her primary interests center on sociology of education and culture. With the mentorship of Dr. Carol Ward, she and Raechel Lizon coauthored an Honors Thesis entitled, "An Examination of the Federal GEAR UP Program as Implemented in a Central Utah School District." Jensen continues research with Dr. Ward on a Master's thesis evaluating math curriculum reforms at the Northern Cheyenne tribal college in Montana. Jensen also analyzed comparative culture/politics as a columnist for Japan's Shimin Times in 2003, and continues this work from Utah as their foreign correspondent. Beginning in fall, 2007, she plans to begin her legal studies at Stanford Law School.

Karpenko Mikhail A.

Professor Mikhail A. Karpenko, Doctor of Technical Sciences, is a founder and rector of the Modern University for the Humanities. MUH has developed and implemented the satellite telecommunication and information technology in education. As of today MUH is the largest higher educational institution in Russia, and one of the ten largest universities of the world. Thanks to personal efforts of Mikhail Karpenko MUH has a large network of branches not only in Russia, but also in the CIS countries and other foreign countries.

Mikhail Karpenko conducts great scientific, research, inventive, and innovative activity. He is an author of 6 inventions and 194 scientific and methodological works. For the major contribution to development of world science and researches in a field of Russian education he has got many awards and titles.

Mikhail Karpenko is a member of the Russian Academy of Natural Sciences, the Russian Academy of Military Sciences, the Russian Academy of Cosmonautics, the Academy of Medical and Technical Sciences, the Academy of Sciences of the Central Europe, the New-York Academy of Sciences, and a member of the General Committee of the Intentional Association "Znanie" having the General status at the UN and the Inter-State Committee of the CIS countries in a field of Dissemination of Education and Adult Education.

Kishtwaria Jatinder

Jatinder Kishtwaria, Professor, is a Family Resource Management specialist. A Ph. D. from the M.S. University at Baroda, India, her work mainly focuses on the economic upliftment of rural mountain women through securing sustainable livelihood security and drudgery reduction. She has participated and organized national and International conferences and workshops on these issues. A consultant to Canadian Based Economic Development Board (CECD) and is guiding postgraduate scholars on the applied aspects of her field of expertise. Her work encompasses the issues of migration, status, hygiene and sanitation, household development level, quantification of invisible contributions of work, database of physical fitness, drudgery and measures for improvement in health status by using ergonomically appropriate technologies and education package for mountain women. A member of mountain forum, she has visited Perth (Australia) and Paro (Bhutan) to present her papers on women related issues.

Knowlton David

David Knowlton, associate professor, is a social anthropologist with a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin (1988). His work encompasses the ethnography of peoples of the Andes, Latin America, Latinos in the United States, and transnational religious movements, especially Mormons. Knowlton has written about religious change, ethnic movements, nationalism, guerrilla movements, and contemporary political struggles of in Lake Titicaca Basin of Peru and Bolivia. Most recently he published "Let Us Speak: The Blockade of 2004 in Copacabana as an Example of the Sociology of Mass Mobilizations" (In the original Spanish its title is: "Queremos hablar: El bloqueo de junio de 2004 en Copacabana como ejemplo de la sociologia de movilizaciones masivas".) He will be performing research this summer in the area on the social issues on the horizon of Adventist, Mormon, and Witness practice around Lake Titicaca.

Kratzer Irina

Irina Kratzer M.D., former cardiologist from Altay Region, Russia. Dr. Irina Kratzer graduated from the Altay State Medical University with a Diploma of Honors in 1989 and specialized in non-invasive cardiology. From 1991 to 1997 she worked at the Altay Regional Cardiological Hospital in the Department of Acute Myocardial Infarction, and as a Head of the Remote Diagnostic Center at the same Hospital. In 1997 she came to the United States and has been residing in Orem, Utah since then. She worked as a Research Coordinator at the Department of Cardiology at Central Utah Medical Clinic from 1999 till 2001.

Krause Amy

Amy Krause coordinates the North American Mountain Forum – an online network of people and organizations who are dedicated to sustainable mountain development in North America. She has a degree in culture and communication and a background in applied communications. For the past seven years she has worked with ‘virtual’ organizations that work across international borders to address sustainable development issues defined by landscape. The North American Mountain Forum is hosted by the Mountain Culture division at The Banff Centre in Banff, Alberta, Canada. It is one of five “nodes” that make up the global Mountain Forum network.

Lamb Connie

Connie Lamb is a senior librarian at the Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University with specialties in anthropology, Middle East Studies, and Women’s Studies. She is also the adjunct curator for Women’s Manuscript Collections in the L. Tom Perry Special Collections at BYU Library. She holds Masters Degrees in Library Science, International Relations-Middle East and Cultural Anthropology. Connie is co-editor of two book-length bibliographies and has published six book reviews and numerous articles on a variety of subjects including library work, biology (her Bachelor’s major), and women’s studies. She is active in both library and subject-oriented professional organizations and has given presentations and papers at several association meetings. She has also taught the Introduction to Women’s Studies class at BYU. Her research interests are Mormon women, Middle East and Muslim women, anthropology of food, and Muslims in Diaspora.

Lizon Raechel

Raechel Lizon is a sociology Master’s student at Brigham Young University. Her research interests include adolescent social identity formation, gender, and educational issues. Lizon has presented papers at conferences on adolescent peer rejection, strategies for relationship repair, and evaluation of educational programs based on her work with Provo School District programs and the Northern Cheyenne tribal college. She is currently researching the efficacy of various program activities for maintaining positive adolescent social identity. She will graduate in August, 2007.

Mack-Canty Colleen

Colleen Mack-Canty, Assistant Professor of Political Science, is Director of the Master of Public Administration Program, at the University of Idaho. She holds a University of Oregon Ph.D. in political science, with an emphasis in feminism. Her research is in third wave feminism, ecofeminism and feminist families. Her publications include: "Third Wave Feminism and the Need to Reweave the Nature/Culture Duality," NWSA (National Women's Studies Association) Journal (2004), "Feminist Family Values: Bridging Third Wave Feminism and Feminist Families," Journal of Family Issues (2004), "Third Wave Feminism and Ecofeminism," Third Wave Feminism: Collective Action in a New Millennium, Routledge Press, (2005), "Postcolonial Feminism" and "Youth Cultures Feminism," The Women's Movement Today: An Encyclopedia of Third Wave Feminism, Greenwood Press, (2006) and "Feminist Parenting," in Feminist Mothering, SUNY Press (forthcoming 2007). Under review, with ARM (Association for Research on Mothering) Journal special edition: "Mothering and Racism" is "Some Contradictions of Mothering in Globalism: Nannies and Transracial/Transnational Adoptions."

Madsen Susan R.

Susan R. Madsen is an associate professor of management in the School of Business at Utah Valley State College and an independent leadership and change consultant. For the past three years she has been heavily involved in research related to the lifetime development of prominent women leaders, and she has interviewed ten women university presidents and ten women governors. She has just finished her first book titled "On Becoming a Woman Leader: The Experiences of University Presidents" and has started her second book on the women governor interviews. Susan has published over 40 articles in peer-reviewed scholarly journals and often presents at local, national, and international academic conferences. She has also presented as an invited speaker in over 50 events in the past four or five years. Susan's research and consulting work have focused on leadership, individual and organizational change, academic service-learning, work-life integration, wellness, and training. She has received numerous awards for her teaching and scholarship at UVSC and beyond. She was awarded her doctorate degree from the University of Minnesota in Work, Community, and Family Education with a specialization in human resource development. She has other degrees from Portland State University and Brigham Young University in exercise science/wellness and speech communication education. She currently lives in Highland with her husband and four teenage children and enjoys racquetball, soccer, hiking, and community involvement.

Malitikov Efim M.

Doctor of Economic Sciences; Doctor of Technical Sciences; Doctor of Economy and Law; Professor at the University of Chicago and the University of Denver (USA); Chairman of the Interstate Committee of the CIS on Promotion of Knowledge and Adult Education; President of the International Association "Znanie" ("Knowledge"); President of the Academy of Informatiology of International Institutions. On May 1, 1947, Efim Malitikov was born into a family of an army officer in Stalinabad (now Dushanbe, Tajikistan). His spouse, Mrs. Larisa Malitikova, is Doctor of Chemical Sciences, professor since 1990 and Director General of a Joint Enterprise "Elin".

Mr. Efim Malitikov is the author of more than 90 scientific publications, renowned international reports and public initiatives. His reports have become important components at such events as the World Summit on Sustainable Development (Johannesburg, 2002), the World Summit on Information Society (Geneva, 2003) and other important forums.

Efim Malitikov is the President of the Academy of Informatization of International Institutions, Professor at the International Academy of Informatization, International Academy of Energy Sciences, Armenian Academy of Humanism, New York Science Academy and other scientific academies around the world.

The Honorable Judy Martz

The Honorable Judy Martz was elected as Montana's first female Governor on November 7, 2000. Just four years earlier, she was elected as the state's first female Lieutenant Governor when she ran with Governor Marc Racicot.

During her tenure, Governor Martz created the Office of Economic Opportunity during the 2001 Legislative session. This office was tasked with promoting Montana Businesses, attracting complimentary businesses to the state, and developing Montana's workforce for better paying jobs.

Governor Martz was born July 28, 1943 in Big Timber, Montana to ranching parents. She was a member of the U.S. Olympic Speed Skating Team at the 1964 Winter Games.

Governor Martz worked as a field representative for U.S. Senator Conrad Burns from 1989 to 1995. She has been civically involved for years, serving as President of the Butte Chamber of Commerce in the early 1990's and vice-chair of the St. James Hospital Board of Directors. For more than 30 years, she and her husband Harry Martz have owned and operated a commercial solid-waste business in Butte. As a small business owner, she became actively involved in local and statewide economic development issues.

Since leaving the Governor's Office, she has been focused primarily on family to include her three year old granddaughter Remy. She is very active in faith based conferences, Maternal Life International and serves on numerous boards to include TASER International and the Western Montana College Board. Governor Martz has been married to Harry for forty-one years.

McCarroll Carolyn E.

Dr. McCarroll began her teaching career at the University of Utah College of Nursing in 1979. She moved to the University of Nevada, Las Vegas in 1984 and is currently a Professor in the School of Nursing where she teaches in the Master of Science Nurse Practitioner program and the PhD program focusing on Nursing Education. Dr. McCarroll served as Dean of the College of Health Sciences at UNLV from 1995 to 2003. She has been involved in research and has published numerous articles in the areas of HIV/AIDS, Cancer, Diabetes, and Alternative Therapies. Dr. McCarroll has also served as the graduate coordinator for the nursing program and Interim Chair of the Departments of Radiological Sciences and Physical Therapy. She sits on the Board of Trustees (Chairperson) of the Area Health Education Center of Southern Nevada, Chairperson of the AIDS Education and Training Center of Southern Nevada, and is a founding Board member and Vice-Chairperson of the Desert Canyon Rehabilitation Hospital. In 2004, Dr. McCarroll received federal funding to initiate the UNLV Center of Excellence in Women's Health and currently serves as the Center's Director.

McGuire Douglas

Douglas McGuire is the Coordinator of the Mountain Partnership Secretariat, hosted at the UN Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome, Italy. He is by training a forester from the Yale School of Forestry and Environmental Studies and has worked in the area of natural resource management and human development for more than 25 years, particularly in mountain regions. McGuire has been with FAO since 1990, managing field projects in watershed management, and upland conservation and development in mountain and highland areas of Madagascar and Rwanda; he was also responsible for FAO's mountain programme at its headquarters in Rome for several years. He coordinated the global observance of the International Year of Mountains in 2002 and has since been involved in setting up the Mountain Partnership and heading its Secretariat in Rome.

Millington J. Kent

J. Kent Millington currently serves as Entrepreneur in Residence at Utah Valley State College where he teaches courses in entrepreneurship and new venture finance. He is also President and CEO of AccessData Corporation, a digital forensics software company. Prior to joining UVSC in August 2004, he lived in Tokyo, Japan where he was Vice President of Asian Operations for Verio, Inc., a subsidiary of NTT Communications. From October 1996 to December 1997 he was president of Internet Servers Inc., a web hosting start-up that was sold to Verio in December 1997. Then he served as Vice President of the newly created Web Hosting Division of Verio until his assignment to Tokyo. He has previously worked for large industrial firms, including EG&G and Exxon. He was CEO of two health insurance companies, owned industrial distribution companies, and was professor of entrepreneurship and finance. Dr. Millington holds a B.A degree in History from the University of Utah, an MBA from Brigham Young University, and a Doctor of Business Administration from California Coast University.

Moore Jon

Jon Moore is Assistant Professor of Geography at Utah Valley State College in Orem, Utah, where he has taught since 2002. Dr. Moore's degrees, all in Geography, are a Ph.D. from The Ohio State University, M.S. from George Mason University and baccalaureate from The George Washington University. He specializes regionally in North America and the Caribbean, focusing on issues such as the urban politics of local economic development, cultural landscape studies, and recently has developed research into critical social theory based upon the work of the Indian philosopher Jiddu Krishnamurti. He is originally from Huntington, West Virginia

Myrzakmatova Baktykan

Baktykan Myrzakmatova is a Public Consultant for the Minister of Academic Affairs of Kyrgyz Republic, Kubanichbek Osmonaliev. Mrs. Myrzakmatova holds her Masters degree in Linguistic, specializing in Kyrgyz and Russian Literature. As a former professor of Osh National University, she has made a valuable contribution to the education system of Kyrgyz Republic by placing a strong emphasis on women's and children's education in rural areas. She is well known for her advocacy of socio-economic status of women living in underdeveloped regions of Kyrgyzstan.

Nay Tyler

Tyler Nay is a senior student at UVSC. His interest in the topic of his paper is based upon a desire to better understand the conflict in Iraq. A large portion of this motivation stems from a previous course that focused on many of the problems found in reporting the war by mainstream media. He also has a brother and a step-brother in the United States military who have spent time in Iraq and may soon be returning there. They have relayed to him events and issues that one does not generally find in the mainstream media.

Norton Robert F.

Robert F. Norton, UVSC Adjunct Professor, is a Cognitive and Instructional Psychologist with a Ph.D. from Brigham Young University (1978). His work has encompassed the application of research in cognitive psychology and cognitive neuroscience to education, the adaptation of instruction to different cognitive styles within and across cultures, and the application of psychological and anthropological principles to the study of conflict resolution in various cultures. He has taught, lived, and researched extensively in the Middle East (9 years) and Korea (3½ years), serving as a Visiting Fulbright Scholar for two years at the University of Bahrain in Sakhir (1992-94), where he designed a laboratory for fostering the teaching of problem solving to children at various ages, investigated Arab contributions to the history and systems of Western Psychology, and produced a handbook for visiting Fulbright professors to prepare them for living in Bahrain. He developed and taught courses in experimental and cross-cultural psychology at the American University of Beirut (1982-85), directed the Master's Specialty in Educational Psychology at Yarmouk University in Jordan (1979-82), developed and administered a teacher evaluation instrument at Kuwait University (1978-79). He also taught English at Jeonbuk National and Kyunghee Universities in Korean as a Peace Corps Volunteer (1971-73) and completed his doctoral dissertation contrasting Korean and American thinking styles (1975-78). He has traveled and photographed extensively in the Far East, Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Northern Africa, and Peru—most recently traveling with a group of UVSC and Chinese students in China for 6 weeks (Spring and Summer, 2006).

His Excellency Dr. Meret Orazov

His Excellency Mr. Meret Orazov is the Ambassador of Turkmenistan to the US, since 2001. During 1991 - 1992 he was Vice Premier of Turkmenistan, First Secretary of Democratic Party of Turkmenistan. Then from 1995 till 1997 was a Minister of Foreign Economic Relations. Since 1987 till 1991 he was a President of Turkmen Economic University, then President of Turkmen State University (1992-2001).

Ambassador Orazov received his Degree of Doctor of Physico-Mathematical Sciences at Moscow University (1983) and PhD in Economics at Saint-Petersburg University of Economy & Finance(1992). M.Orazov has published more than 100 scientific papers in the sphere of mathematics and economics. He was elected an Academician of the Academy of Sciences of Turkmenistan in1993. Since 1999 he is a member of the NY Academy of Sciences, and since 2003 is a member of the Academy of International Business.

Padiukov Pierre

Padiukov Pierre was born on 1956, and on 1982 graduated Kyrgyz State Medical Institute, also on 2001 Master Degree on “International economical relations”. He started his labor activity from 1983 as a physician-therapeutist at the city’s clinic. From 1986 he worked at the Institute of the Physiology and experimental pathology of highlands under the Academy of Science of the Kyrgyz SSR. Since 1999 he is a director of the “Mountain village” project of the National Center for Mountain Regions Development of the Kyrgyz Republic.

From 1998 he is actively participating in activities related to International Year of Mountains, at UN Headquarter in New-York have participated in preparation, development and declaration on International Year of Mountains on 2002.

On 2001 he is organized presentation prepared to International Year of Mountains, issued two series of the post stamps.

In the frame of National Strategy and plan of actions on sustainable development of the mountain regions of the Kyrgyz Republic he established training-center on trout-breeding in cooperation with Japan embassy, and also together with Russia center on collecting and processing medicinal plants.

He is actively participating in “Clear water” project of the Asian Reconstruction and Development Bank.

For active participation in preparation and organizing of the International Year of Mountains he was awarded with Honorary Diploma by the Prime-minister of the Kyrgyz Republic.

Since 2003 he is a full member of the International Academy of the Information (Moscow) at the UN General Consultation status.

At the present time under his coordination implementing “Poverty reduction in the polluted region of the Central Asia” project.

Padiukova Olga

Padiukova Olga is a philologist from the Kyrgyz State National University (1982-1988). Since 2002 to the present time she is working at the “Mountain village” project on position of deputy director of the project. During her activity she is involved and working on: sustainable development of mountain regions, scientific-research activities, participation in organization international conference and seminars, preparation and distribution of informational brochures on problems of women in mountain regions of the Kyrgyz Republic, technical support and preparation official documents, sustainable development issues and etc. At present time she is working at the project on “Poverty reduction in polluted regions of the Central Asia” together with UN Department on economical and social issues.

Palmer Loretta

Loretta Palmer, Associate Vice President of Undergraduate Research and International Programs, is a math educator with a Ph.D. in Instructional Design and Technology from Brigham Young University (1997). She has lived and worked in sub-Saharan Africa, most recently at the Polytechnic of Namibia, where she was a visiting faculty in the Department of Digital Media and also as an instructional designer at the Centre for Open and Lifelong Learning. Her research areas are reflective of her diverse experiences. They are in intellectual property issues related to distance education and digital media in sub-Saharan Africa and ethnomathematics. In particular, ethnomathematics as it related to the cultural contexts of math word problems found in American primary school mathematics textbooks published between the Revolutionary War and World War I.

She grew up in the Sierra Nevada Mountains of northern California and married Allen Palmer, who grew up in the Salmon River Range of mountains of western Idaho.

Pandey Ranju

Ms Ranju Pandey, with a post graduate in Economics and Education from Tribhuwon University of Nepal (1995), is a gender and social development expert for program, research and training. She heads and owns her consulting company – the Management Support Program of the Era (MSP Era) (Pvt.) Ltd. She has been to 55 out of 75 districts of Nepal during her 11 years of professional career. As a researcher, she has investigated wide ranging issues varying from gender equity, women empowerment, human trafficking to street children. As a programmer she has developed training manuals and monitoring indicators on issues of gender and women health, and girls trafficking respectively. While working with NTAG’s ‘National Vitamin-A Program’, she was the lead trainer and had trained several thousand persons for child and maternal health of more than 50 districts of Nepal. She has also trained quite a number of persons on gender, women health and HIV/AIDS on behalf of government, non government and international organizations.

###

Pasin Peggy

Peggy Pasin has served as Program Coordinator of the Turning Point Women's Resource Center since 1997. The position was originally part time and evolved into a full time position as involvement with the Sunshine Lady Foundation increased dramatically. Since 1999, 81 women have received a total of $847,000 in Women's Independence Scholarships and Charitable Adjunct Assistance Awards from the Sunshine Lady Foundation. These recipients have been survivors of domestic violence who sought financial assistance for the education crucial to securing self-sufficiency. Peggy was named Most Prolific Grant Writer at UVSC for 2006 for her work with the Sunshine Lady Foundation. Prior to her work in the Women's Resource Center, Peggy taught developmental English and Reading classes and was the Coordinator of the Academic Technology Assistance Center in the Learning Enrichment Center of UVSC. During her work in developmental studies, Peggy was co-author of College Preparatory English and Resource Book; co-developer of a reading textbook and bookmark system which was later published by Dr. Elaine Byrd, et al.; College Reading and Learning Association State Director, 1995; twice named LEC Adjunct Teacher of the Year, 1989 and 1990; and Extra Mile Faculty Friend Award from ABLE Club. Peggy's work prior to UVSC was in publishing and in developing educational software and test items for ACT and SAT, primarily at WICAT. Peggy has a Bachelor of Arts, University of Wyoming, in Special Education. Peggy is a life-long learner with endless curiosity who has taken many graduate level classes at the University of Utah and has taken every opportunity possible to attend conferences and seminars. Her passion has shifted from developmental studies to issues around domestic violence and funding for survivors. She is able to draw on her background in learning strategies and campus resources as she confers with clients having academic struggles.

Powley Ellen Lockwood

Ellen Lockwood Powley, associate lecturer in The Women's Research Institute, Brigham Young University received a BM from the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester (1967) in French Horn performance and music education. She obtained her MEd. and EdD. in Educational Leadership and Foundations from Brigham Young University. Powley's dissertation, One-Teacher Primary Schools in England, Scotland, and Wales: A Secondary Analysis (1997-98), consists of in-depth interviews with women head teachers and includes an analysis framed by the educative elements of community, school, curriculum, pupils, and head teachers. Her work also includes curricula writing, research, teaching, and speaking about women's issues. Most recently she has taught the following courses: On Becoming an Active Scholar; Women's Journeys: Recognizing the Plurality of Perspectives; Women Making Music; Women, Music, and Society; and Introduction to Women's Studies. Her teaching and learning philosophy stems from her commitment to students, analysis of educative experiences, and honoring her students as they learn and form opinions beyond their initial understanding. She has given academic presentations at the National Rural Education Association, Getty Museum Education Conference, Utah's Gifted and Talented Partnership Conference, The American Musical Instrument Society, and many educational conferences throughout the United States. Honors received include: Sigma Alpha Iota, Music Honor Sorority; Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society; National Rural Education Association Dissertation Award; Museum Education Leadership Recognition, Brigham Young University; and as a member of The University of Rochester Alumni Association she was recognized for distinctive service in the spirit of Susan B. Anthony.

Pratt Jane

Jane Pratt is the former President and CEO of The Mountain Institute, <http://www.mountain.org>, dedicated to conserving the environments, communities and cultures of the world's mountains. She is also a founder of Mountain Forum, a global network for sharing information among those who work in and on mountains <http://www.mtnforum.org>. She served as coordinator of the UN Focus Group on Mountains for the International Year of Mountains.

Dr. Pratt is also a founding Partner of EcoLogica, a consulting firm focused on ecological and economic sustainability. She is a recipient of UNEP's Global 500 Award for her leadership in creating and heading the World Bank's environmental operations and strategy division, and leading the World Bank's involvement in the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro. She holds an ScB in Zoology from University of Michigan, and a PhD from MIT where she specialized in political and economic development.

Reyes Gerardo Lopez

Gerardo Reyes Lopez, professor at the Universidad Autonoma de Chihuahua, is Director of Post Graduate Studies. He has been a leader in promoting higher education for the Raramuri students in Chihuahua, Mexico. He has worked extensively in promoting post graduate education for teachers in the public school system of Chihuahua, Mexico. Reyes Lopez has conducted numerous studies of the educational system of the State of Chihuahua and has been actively involved in research in the border city of Juarez, Mexico. He teaches several classes in education to teachers seeking post-graduate degrees at the Universidad Autonoma de Chihuahua at the Chihuahua and Juarez campuses of the UACH. His current research involves analyses of the lives of Raramuri immigrants to urban centers.

Roby Jini L.

Jini L. Roby, JD, MSW, MS is an associate professor of social work at Brigham Young University where she teaches US social welfare policy and global child welfare. She has researched child welfare issues such as international adoption, child nutrition, barriers to education, child trafficking and orphan care options in the Pacific and in Africa. She has assisted governments in developing in-country and international adoption policies and trained practitioners on best adoption practices. For the past several years she has focused on the global orphan crisis and the appropriate policy and practice development in response. Currently she is involved in a project to provide succession planning services to parents who are terminally ill. Prior to joining the faculty at BYU, she was an attorney for abused and neglected children in Utah's public child welfare system. In 1984 she founded the Family Support and Treatment Center in Orem, Utah and directed it for several years before entering law school. She has received the Governor's Award for Achievement, a service award from the Korean American Society of Utah and recently the Order of the Coif from the J. Reuben Clark School of Law at BYU for her legal and scholastic contributions

Reineke Sandra

Sandra Reineke, assistant professor of political science and women's studies, is a political theorist with a Ph.D. from Indiana University, Bloomington (2004). Her research and teaching interests are in the areas of feminist political theory, democratic theory, citizenship studies, sexual and reproductive politics, and comparative gender politics. Reineke has written about the French philosopher Simone de Beauvoir and the French postwar liberation movement, and is currently conducting a comparative study of national laws governing new reproductive and genetic technologies (NRGTs). She will be conducting research this summer for this project in specialized archives in Paris, France, as well as giving a public talk at the Ch.-Albrechts Universität in Germany.

Rudaz Gilles

Gilles Rudaz is a geographer, visiting post-doctoral scholar at the University of California-Berkeley supported by the Swiss National Science Foundation. He obtained his Ph.D. from the University of Geneva (Switzerland) in 2005. He is interested in mountain politics and policies. His researches address the organization of mountain interests, the creation of mountain groups and their transnational relations, and the international rise of mountain issues. He focuses on how mountain groups defend their territories as life spaces and argue their legitimacy to define the development and planning options.

Saedi David

David Saedi is CEO of CERTIPORT. During his six-year tenure with Certiport, David has been instrumental in helping grow the company from start-up to the leading provider of global, performance-based certification programs and services. David has played an integral role in cultivating the company's relationship with Microsoft, working jointly on strategy planning and implementation of Microsoft Office Specialist certification. He also has headed Certiport efforts to diversify into new markets. David has more than 20 years of management experience in numerous industries.

Prior to joining Certiport, he served as Vice President of Business Development for CENTRA. In this capacity, he worked with the president of the company to restructure CENTRA following its acquisition of Equifax Healthcare Systems. He is credited with re-engineering company initiatives and creating a quality assurance program as well as managing the construction of CENTRA's new $12 million headquarters. David also has served as Vice President of Marketing for Design Access, Deputy Executive Director of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID), and as a senior analyst with the Servio Group. In his position with ASID, David's achievements included working to institute statewide legislation on behalf of designers and architects.

David has a master's degree in business administration with an emphasis on marketing from the City University Business School in London, England; and a bachelor's degree in chemical sciences and management from the University of Manchester Institute of Science and Technology. He has completed several professional development programs and is a member of the American Management Association, American Society of Association Executives, and British Market Research Society.

Saeed Rana Riaz

Rana Riaz Saeed is a Development Economist and has over 16-years diversified experience in social and human development. His expertise includes social and economic upliftment of deprived and underprivileged segment of society by designing pro-poor project/program, applied research, emergency relief operation and advocacy and lobbying for their rights at National and International forums. Presently, he is working as Chief Coordinator of Development Advocates and Lobbyists, a Pakistani NGO. However, he has been working with/for some leading international social development organisations such as USAID, Oxfam-Novib, GTZ, ADB, UNDP, CARE International in Pakistan etc. in various capacities. He has written a number of analytical research papers and reports on Socio-economic and political situation of Pakistani communities. Following research papers and articles are worth mentioning.

- The Economic Effects of Workers' Migration, a research paper published in daily The Frontier Post June 1991.

- Non-governmental Organisations (NGOs) in Pakistan submitted to MESCA Bureau, Novib. (Available at <http://www.mtnforum.org/resources/library/esp99a.htm>)

- At Odds or At Ease? NGOs and Local Communities in World Bank Supported Projects in Pakistan, Study done under a joint venture of DevFound, Novib, Sungi Development Foundation and SAFWCO (Published in August 2001).

- Advocating Women's Rights: The Movement in Pakistan March 2001: (Available at Mountain Forum's On-line Library <http://www.mtnforum.org/resources/library/saeer01a.htm>)

- Future Challenges to NGOs and Development Workers in Pakistan: A lecture delivered at Institute of Development Studies and Practices Quetta June-2002. Available at <http://econwpa.wustl.edu/eps/dev/papers/0501/0501007.pdf>

- Humane Governance for Human Security & Sustainable Human Development, A generic training module submitted to UNDP-PARAGON March 2003, Published.

- Women Status in Pakistan under Customs and Values & The Controversial Hudood Ordinance 1979- December 2004. Available at <http://econwpa.wustl.edu/eps/le/papers/0501/0501003.pdf>

- Women and Youth in Peace and Security: This paper outlines issues of peace and security in South Asia and China and its effect on women and youth. Presented at World Social Forum-2006 held in Karachi March 2006.

In the upcoming conference at the USVC, he will present a paper Socio-Economic, Political & Gender Situation of Tribal Areas' Women in Sulaiman Mountain Range – PAKISTAN.

Sakhi Nilofar

I am the founder of Women Activities and Social Services Association (WASSA), an Afghan NGO that seeks to promote women's empowerment through social services, advocacy, and peace-building programs that strive to build the capacity of Afghan civil society in support of women's activities. I designed advocacy and peacebuilding programs for WASSA which are implemented country wide in Afghanistan.

I presented different papers related women's empowerment, democracy and Islam, gender and culture, International conventions and women's right and challenges confronting women's movement in different international events. Currently in the United States on a Fulbright scholarship, I am pursuing a graduate degree in conflict transformation at the Center for Justice and Peacebuilding at Eastern Mennonite University, in Virginia. During my stay in the United States I also received a visiting fellowship at National Endowment for Democracy in which I studied the challenges confronting the women's movement in Afghanistan.

Salas Sonia Dominguez

Sonia Salas Dominguez is an Engineer in Food Industries with Msc. and Dr. Degree in Food Sciences (Kertészeti Egyetem of Hungary). She has a 18 years experience in the field of agrobusiness research and promotion, mainly rural agribusiness (formulation of research projects applied, formulation of investment projects, design of methodologies, management of projects, planning--evaluation, extension and technical assistance) within Peru, the countries of the treaty Interamazonic and the Andean countries. Her current position is coordinator in latinoamerica for Oberle foundation and president of REDAR Peru at the country level.

She get a implementation for the Regional Program of Integral Development (benefiting more than 150,000 families of the rural area) in 14 departments of of Peru (Coast, Sierra and Rainforest). The principal component was generation of income and employment mainly to young people and women. This work was done in C3rityas of Peru with an amount of investment USA$ 11'000,000.00.

Her research on fields such as biotechnology for the recovery of biodegradable organic waste, generation of technologies appropriate for andean products processing and generation of methodologies for local development are involved with promotion in mountain communities and rural agroindustries promotion in andean region.

She worked as an investigator associated of the International Potato Center (CIP) regional coordinator in postharvest, processing, and market, of the Andean food at the country level of the Andean ecorregion.

His Excellency Dr. Aleksander Sallabanda

Aleksander Sallabanda, the ambassador of the Republic of Albania in Washington DC, was a professor of public health with a PhD from the University of Tirana, Albania (1994). He has a career in public health which mainly focused on health policy, health organization and control and prevention of infectious diseases. Ambassador Sallabanda served as Deputy Minister of Health of Albania during 2005-2006. He has published two medical books and several articles related to the eradication of polio, control and prevention of HIV- AIDS, TB and blood control. As Ambassador, Mr. Sallabanda is focused on developing and reinforcing bilateral relations between Albania and the United States with a specific goal of NATO membership for Albania in 2008. Other issues include growth of American investments in Albania, development and reinforcement of collaboration with American Albanian civil society and exchanges with different universities in USA.

Samanchina Jarkyn

Jarkyn Samanchina is a Director for Development of a Kyrgyz environmental NGO “Bashat” Community and Business Forum (CBF) promoting sustainable development of local communities residing in remote mountainous regions of Kyrgyzstan with consideration of ecological issues.

Jarkyn joined Bashat’s (CBF) core staff in September 2004 as a Projects Coordinator. She has worked on several interesting and important projects since then: pilot project “The Sacred Sites of Kyrgyzstan” funded by The Christensen Fund based in Palo Alto, USA, and administered by the British conservation organization Fauna & Flora International (FFI); “Capacity Building for Biodiversity Conservation in Kyrgyzstan (Sarychat-Ertash State Reserve)” funded by EBRD/IFC and administered by FFI, with technical input of Snow Leopard Trust (SLT) based in Seattle, USA; as well as the community based conservation component of SLT’s Snow Leopard Conservation Program in Kyrgyzstan. In the capacity of a Director for Development, Jarkyn is now responsible for Bashat’s (CBF) staff capacity building and development, public relations and fundraising activities.

Jarkyn graduated with a Bachelor’s degree in International Relations (Magna Cum Laude) with concentration in “Third World Development” from San Francisco State University, USA, in May 1999. In July 2004, she completed her Master’s degree in the same field at Middle East Technical University in Ankara, Turkey. Her Master’s thesis was on the topic: “U.S. Foreign Policy Toward Central Asia: 1991-2003.” Jarkyn has extensive work experience with non-governmental and educational institutions both in Kyrgyzstan and the USA. She is a member of Sigma Iota Rho International Relations Honor Society.

Sati M. C

M. C Sati, reader in the department of economics, HN Bahuguna Garhwal University , Srinagar (Garhwa), Uttaranchal ,India is a development economist with Ph.D.in agriculture economics (1994). He is the key professional working on various issues ie. elementary education, health, community empowerment and human development in the Indian Central Himalaya Region (ICHR). He is also associated in various research projects and training programmes of National Institute of Administrative Research, LBS National Academy of Administration, Mussoorie Uttaranchal since 2000. At present he is coordinating a major research project titled ‘Diversification,sustainable livelihoods and mountain agriculture in Central Himalaya of India’

Sattar Sarosh

Sarosh Sattar is an economist at the World Bank. She is the Gender Coordinator for the Europe and Central Asia Region and the Lead Poverty Reduction Strategy Advisor for Central Asia and the Caucuses. She received her Ph.D. in economics from Cornell University (1990). She has worked at the World Bank, an international development organization, since 1991. She has a diverse background and her work encompasses macroeconomic analysis, social expenditure analysis, and poverty issues.

Semyonov Alexey

Alexey Semyonov, the CEO&CFO of Advanced Language Systems International, is a compute scientist and a mathematician. His professional work encompasses practical and theoretical system engineering, software development, and IT strategy formulation. In addition to the professional activities, Mr. Semyonov has a long-time involvement in the human rights movement, beginning with his 1970's activities as a dissident in the former Soviet Union. He is a Vice-President and Member of the Board of The Andrei Sakharov Foundation (USA) as well as Member of the Board for The Andrei Sakharov Foundation (Russia). Both professionally and as a human rights activist, he has worked in many developing countries and participated in efforts towards economic development and democratization in places such as Russia, Armenia, Georgia, Turkey, Kyrgyzstan, Azerbaijan, and others.

Shahnazarian Nona

Nona Shahnazarian has been an Associate Researcher at Center for Pontic and Caucasian Studies and Lecturer, Kuban Social and Economical Institute (1999 to present), Krasnodar, South of Russia. She received her Candidate s Degree in Social Anthropology from the Institute of Ethnology and Anthropology, Russian Academy of Sciences, (17 May 2005) and has conducted fieldwork in Russia, Armenia, Georgia, and Nagorno-Karabagh through grants from Memorial (Moscow), The Soros Foundation, The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, and the Carnegie Foundation. Now she is doing her research study on Social/personal networks and Informal Economy in Caucasian Societies at UCLA, department of Sociology as a Fulbrighter. Her work encompasses the ethnography of the Caucasus, Gender studies, and the Informal Economies in post-soviet world. Her recent articles on the Caucasus include, The Virtual Widows of Migrant Husbands in War-Torn Mountainous Karabagh, in Haldis Haukanes and Frances Pine, eds., Women After Communism (Bergen, 2005); Nomadic Identity: A Case of Hemshins, in N. P. Kosmarskaya eds., Diasporas, # 4 (Moscow, 2004); The Ethics of Field Work Research (Antropologicheskii Forum SPb, 5. 2006); Informal Support Networks and Shadow Economies in the South Caucasus (Forthcoming in 2007. London, Routledge).

Sherpa Dechenla

Ms. Dechenla Sherpa is the Gender Specialist at the International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD), which works in the Hindu Kush Himalayan range.

Coming from the Everest region in Nepal, Ms. Sherpa has worked in the mountain areas all her life, with strong grass roots experience and speaks the true voice of mountain women. During her professional career, she has trained people from various religions, status and nationalities. Although she started her career in the field of Development Communications, she was destined to work on the issues of women's equity, and gradually evolve as a strong gender activist. She has been responsible for developing strategies that influence government policies, organising social exhibitions, media campaigns, product promotions, etc.

A staunch believer of equity, Ms. Sherpa started her career at a very young age in conflict torn kingdom of Nepal, training women in the most rural mountain areas of Nepal. Ms. Sherpa is now responsible for trainings on gender issues in Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, China, India, Myanmar, Nepal and Pakistan. She has written several articles relating to economic opportunities for women, gender blind policies, engendering sustainable development, etc.

Besides her experience on gender issues, Ms. Sherpa has a strong passion for travel documentaries, focusing specifically on issues of poverty, tourism, environment, women, and community development. Coming from a predominantly ethnic village of the lower belt of the Everest region, in Nepal, Ms. Sherpa is a graduate of Delhi University, India and Tribhuvan University, Nepal, with professional experience as a journalist, as the youngest professional of UNDP Nepal, as a tourism professional, and as a Gender expert.

Sherpa Yankila

Yankila Sherpa is the President of Federation of Woman Entrepreneurs of Nepal (FWEAN). She has served her country in the capacity of a State Minister and Assistant Minister for Culture, Tourism and Civil Aviation, and as a Member of Parliament (MP) of the Upper House of Nepal. She has remained the Hon. Secretary of the Caucus of Women MPs, Senate member of Tribhuvan University Council, the only Government University of Nepal.

Coming from one of the most remote areas of Nepal called Olangchung Gola of the Mt. Kanchenjunga region, bordering Tibet and Nepal. Having to walk ten days from her mountain village every year to go to school, Yankila Sherpa has set an example of a survivor to fellow mountain women, being awarded nationally and internationally for her outstanding contribution in the field of mountain tourism and women empowerment and later on representing mountain women in the mainstream development, becoming the first woman State Minister of Tourism of Nepal. As a tourism professional, she has led the male dominated trekking industry of Nepal, by becoming the President of Trekking Agents Association of Nepal. Today she is actively involved in mountain development issues as the Advisor and Honorary member of the Mountain Spirit and advisor of Nepal Mountaineering Association (NMA). As a tourism entrepreneur who has contributed significantly in ecotourism development, she has been recognized and awarded with the Abraham Conservation Award by World Wildlife Fund (WWF). She has also been awarded with the prestigious "Priyadarshani Award" as the Outstanding Woman Entrepreneur of Nepal in 1999 by Federation of International Women Entrepreneurs.

Shilling John D.

John D. Shilling has spent his career promoting economic development and encouraging sustainability. He earned his PhD in Economics from MIT in 1971, taught at Boston College, advised the Moroccan government in national planning, and worked nearly 30 years at the World Bank. His work at the World Bank covered research into key development issues, developing national country planning models, managing country programs in North Africa and East Asia, and leading the World Bank's efforts in the Brady Plan to assist highly indebted countries come through the debt crisis. He laid the basis for the World Development Report program, helped Morocco reform its economy while resolving its debt problem, authored Managing Capital Flows in East Asia (1996), which highlighted the issues that led to the Asian financial crisis, and led the Public Expenditure Review in Indonesia to help restructure the economy after the crisis. He was the Secretary to the Policy and Operations Committees of the Managing Directors 1996-1998, and served on the Bank-Fund Coordinating Committee for financial sector reviews. Over his career, Dr. Shilling has increasingly focused attention on achieving sustainable development and respecting the environment. He headed the World Bank's effort to create a new Environmental Strategy and launch the World Development Report on Sustainable Development and then wrote the World Bank's first evaluation of its environmental program. After leaving the World Bank, he has worked with a number of environmental NGOs, including World Wildlife Fund, Conservation International, and the Millennium Institute, to promote sustainable development and protect the environment. He consults for UN agencies and the World Bank, where he just completed an intensive study on the Infrastructure-Environment Nexus for the group of Evaluation Units of the major Development Banks. He is a founding partner of Ecologica LLC, devoted to sustainable development.

The Honorable Joe Shirley, Jr. , Navajo Nation President

Joe Shirley Jr., 55, was born on December 4th, 1947 in Chinle, Arizona. He is of the Todich'iini clan, born for the Tabaahi clan. His maternal grandfather is Tsenjiikini.

Shirley, raised by his grandmother since he was a toddler has called Chinle his home all of his life. He has a genuine love for people from all walks of life. He enjoys playing basketball, running and spending time with his family. One of his greatest enjoyments is lecturing on the Navajo way of life for self-development.

He is married to Vikkie and they have six children, three daughters and three sons. His wife Vikki is Kiyaa'nni born for the Ma'iidesh giizhnni clan. Her parents are Victor Moses and Gladys Begay of Lukachukai, Arizona.

A 1966 graduate of Chinle High School in Chinle, Arizona, Shirley went on to earn his Associates of Arts Degree in 1968 from Magic Valley Christian College in Albion, Idaho. His continued pursuit of education found him at Abilene Christian University in Abilene, Texas, where he obtained his Bachelor of Science Degree, majoring in Business. In 1978, Shirley earned a Masters of Social Work Degree (MSW) from Arizona State University in Tempe, Arizona.

Shirley contributed sixteen years to the social services field, and from 1983 to 1984 he served as Executive Director of the Navajo Division of Social Services.

His public service is vast, including serving on the Navajo Nation Council from 1986 to 1999, where was the Chairman of the Labor and Manpower Committee, the Advisory Committee from 1987 to 1991, Chairman of the Tax Commission from 1991 to 1996, member of the Human Services Committee from 1991 to 1995, and member of the Intergovernmental Relations Committee and Chairman of the Ethics and Rules Committee form 1995 to 1998.

Shirley was elected Apache County Supervisor in 1984, a position he recently retired from in January.

In 1996, he was appointed to the Board of Directors of the National Association of Counties (NACo) in Washington, D.C., which comprises of over 3000 counties throughout the United States. He is also a member of the Economic and Community Development Committee of NACo, as well as received an appointment to serve as a member of the Advisory Committee to the President's Commission of Sustainable Communities in Washington D.C. and from 1985 to 1991 he was a member of the Public Lands Committee.

He has already gained national Native American attention, by being appointed by Native American leaders to co-chair both the BIA/Tribal Budget Advisory Council and the Sovereign Protection Initiative; he also is working with tribal leaders as a member of the Trust Reform Committee.

Since taking office in January as the President of the Navajo Nation, Shirley has successfully led the Shirley-Dayish administration in moving the Navajo Nation forward with the priorities set forth by the Navajo people, including initiatives in education, scholarships and economic development, among others.

President Joe Shirley Jr., has a true commitment to serve the Navajo Nation, by giving power back to the Navajo people.

Snedegar Keith

Dr. Keith Snedegar is Professor of History and Chair of the History and Political Science Department at Utah Valley State College, where he has taught since 1994. Originally from Grand Rapids, Michigan, he has degrees from the Universities of Michigan, Edinburgh, and Oxford. He has been a postdoctoral research fellow at the University of Cape Town and visiting scholar at North West University in South Africa. Professor Snedegar's research interests include the history of astronomy and indigenous African astronomical knowledge. He has several publications in these fields.

Solomon Amanda Bingham

Amanda Bingham Solomon graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in History and a double minor in Spanish and English from Brigham Young University in December 2006. She is working as an intern at the Museum of Church History and Art in Salt Lake City. She is currently conducting research on 1847 San Diego California, the Mormon Battalion, and the women who accompanied the Mormon Battalion on their march to California.

Starr S. Frederick

S. Frederick Starr is Chairman of the Central Asia Institute at Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) in Washington, DC. His research has resulted in twenty books and 200 published articles.

Dr. Starr was educated at Yale; Cambridge University, England; and Princeton. Before coming to the Central Asia Institute he was founding director of the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies at the Wilson Center in Washington, president for eleven years of Oberlin College, and president of the Aspen Institute. He founded the Greater New Orleans Foundation and is a trustee of the Eurasia Foundation.

Dr. Starr has been closely involved with US policy towards Russia and Central Asia for thirty years and has advised four U.S. presidents. He maintains close ties with government leaders and independent figures in politics and culture on all the states he studies.

Dr. Starr is the recipient of five honorary degrees and is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Stecker Alex

Alex Stecker, senior lecturer, in the Department of History & Political Science and is the Political Science coordinator. Has a Ph.D. from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, in ancient studies, archaeology and the modern Middle East. He has spent several years on excavations in Israel and in other countries of the Middle East. He is in final draft of an article "The Abdication of Power" in the Bible. Much of his time is spent studying and watching the political events of the Middle East.

Her Excellency, Mrs. Zamira Sydykova

Born in 1960 in Kyrgyzstan, Her Excellency, Mrs Zamira Sydykova graduated from the journalism faculty of Moscow State. In 1992, immediately after Kyrgyzstan separated from the former Soviet Union, Ms. Sydykova founded her country's first independent newspaper, Res Publica.

In 2000 Sydykova was awarded for the Courage by the Washington, DC-based International Women's Media Foundation in 2000.

In the wake of the democratic uprising in Kyrgyzstan in March, 2005, Ms. Sydykova was appointed Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Kyrgyz Republic to the USA and Canada.

Taabaldiev Kuban

Kuban Taabaldiev, Fulbright Scholar, is professional journalist and media manager with a Ph.D. from the Moscow State University in 1993. He has been the director of Kyrgyz National news agency "Kabar" in 1998-2006. He was the PAO's assistant of the USIA Bishkek office in 1995-96 and producer of the Central Asian and Caucasus service of the WS BBC in London (UK) in 1996-98. His present research focuses on political, economical situation and education in the Kyrgyz Republic and Central Asia, and on transition period of CIS. He has written an analytical materials, related to the political situation in Kyrgyz Republic, specifically about the abolishing the death penalty and present situation in Kyrgyz media. He will be performing research this summer concerning media development in rural areas of the USA and then he plans to use it for rural media development in the Kyrgyz Republic

Tewari Basant K.

Dr. Basant K. Tewari (b.10th Jan.1968) is an academician. He holds Master's level qualifications in Economics, Pedagogy, Environmental Science and a Doctoral Degree in Environmental Education.

Presently he is associated with Indira Gandhi National Open University at the Study Centre, Almora (Uttaranchal) as an Academic Counsellor (Env. Studies). He has been working in the field of Environmental Education and Anthropogenic Environmental Hazards Mitigation & Management for past ten years.

More than 15 research papers published and 10 research studies to his credit.

Tikhomirov Alexei

Alexei Tikhomirov from 1992 till now is UNDESA, Chief, Asia and Transition Economies Unit (Transition Economies and Free Zones Section, 1992-94). He has a degree of a Doctor of Economics with a concentration in Management, Moscow University (1988) and Ph.D. in Economics, Moscow University (1977). He was a Post-Doctoral Fellow in MIT (1982-1983) and University of Maryland (1982). Areas of his responsibility include: -supervision and participation in substantive preparation and organization of operational research and training activities for developing countries of Asia and Transition Economies; - guidance and advisory services to national authorities in the field of socio-economic policy and macroeconomic management during transition to market-orientated structures; -provision of technical support and strengthening multi-sectoral planning and management development programs and institutions; provision of substantive inputs to normative/analytical activities including papers, reports and other publications. He has published more than 80 books, reports, and papers on multi-sectoral modeling, forecasting, planning and management, socio-economic policies in countries with economies in transition

The Honorable Mr. Brett L. Tolman

Brett L. Tolman was nominated by President George W. Bush on June 9, 2006, and confirmed by the United States Senate on July 21, 2006, as the United States Attorney for the District of Utah.

Prior to becoming U.S. Attorney, Mr. Tolman served as Chief Counsel for Crime and Terrorism for the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee and its Chairman, Senator Arlen Specter, from 2004 to July 2006 and Counsel for Crime and Terrorism for Chairman Orrin Hatch of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee from 2003 to 2004. During his tenure with the Senate Judiciary Committee, Mr. Tolman was responsible for drafting and negotiating passage of several significant pieces of legislation, including the USA

PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2005 and additions to the Violence Against Women Act. He also assisted in the confirmation hearings of Supreme Court Justices and nominees for the Department of Justice, including the Attorney General of the United States.

He was honored in the April 9, 2005, issue of the National Journal as one of the most influential staffers on Capitol Hill.

Mr. Tolman served several years as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the District of Utah. In addition to working in the Violent Crime Section where he prosecuted a variety of felony cases in federal court, including homicide, illegal gun manufacturing, carjacking, robbery, money laundering and bank robbery, Mr. Tolman coordinated Utah Project Safe Neighborhoods, a federal anti-gun violence reduction program. As Utah's PSN Coordinator, Mr. Tolman worked with local, state, and federal law enforcement officers and prosecutors, community partners, and others to develop one of the nation's most successful PSN programs. More than 1,000 federal firearms cases were developed and prosecuted under Mr. Tolman's leadership.

Mr. Tolman clerked for U.S. District Chief Judge Dee Benson from 1998-2000 and was a litigation associate for Richards, Brandt, Miller and Nelson in Salt Lake City during the summer of 1997.

Tsuladze Lia

Lia Tsuladze is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Faculty of Social and Political Sciences at Tbilisi State University, Georgia. After graduating from Sociology Department in 1996, she continued her post-graduate studies at the university and in 2004 defended her PhD thesis entitled "Autonomy and Sanctions in Socialization in the Context of Georgian Culture." In the same year she became an assistant professor of Sociology at Tbilisi State University and Center for Social Sciences at Open Society-Georgia Foundation. She delivers the courses in Introduction to Sociology, Quantitative Research Methods, Cultural Sociology, and Academic Writing in Social Sciences. At the same time, she is the Head of Sociology Section at Institute of Sociology and Demography at Ministry of Education and Culture of Georgia.

At the moment, Lia Tsuladze is a visiting scholar at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. At the same time, she is a Curriculum Resource Center (CDC) grantee at Central European University (CEU), Budapest, where she has developed a course in Cultural Sociology and is developing a web-based Course Portfolio. She is also working on INTAS project entitled "Patterns of Migration in the New European Borderlands." She is an author of 7 articles and 1 textbook, also an editor of 2 books. Her research interest is cultural sociology, cultural semiotics, youth subcultures, and intercultural communication.

Ulloa Sara

Sara Ulloa was born in the Andean country of Peru. At an early age Sara came to the United States to pursue her studies at Brigham Young University. Eventually, she was given a position teaching Spanish at BYU and traveled with different groups of students to different areas in Mexico to perfect language skills as well as give humanitarian service to children in orphanages.

Sara has also designed and taught Spanish for the community and professionals. She has worked with English-Spanish translations and interpretations such as BYU Cable Production around the World. In addition, Sara has also worked with different humanitarian service organizations such as Help International and Chasqui Humanitarian. At present Sara is a Spanish Professor for the Languages Department at UVSC. She is a member of the UVSC Task Force for the Underrepresented Groups in Higher Education and advisor for the Capoeira and Hispanic Legacy Company Clubs. Furthermore, she is the Director for the Spain Study Abroad this Summer 2007 and will be involved with the 29th Annual Language Testing Research Colloquium for the International Testing Association In Barcelona, Spain this coming June.

Sara has committed her time and energy to teach, mentor and mold the students' minds for a better future as they grasp language principles in the classroom. She believes that to be a professor not only means to have knowledge of a subject but most importantly to be able to transfer this information and energy to students who would want to learn and apply this knowledge in their own lives to broaden their opportunities in the future. It is her wish that those students would be able to spread their wings and involve themselves in activities which will contribute to a better environment, especially throughout Andean nations.

Umetalieva Toktayim

Toktayim Umetalieva is a famous public figure in Kyrgyz Republic, first woman Candidate to the position of the president in the history of Central Asia and Kyrgyzstan, a founder and publisher of unique independent weekly children's newspaper "Ai-Danek" in Central Asia. The newspaper is laprize-winner of a range of international competitions.

She is also a Chairman of the second NGO Working group of Europe, Central Asia (post-soviet area) and Turkey NCO Assembly. The Association of NGO and NCO headed by Toktayim Umetalieva includes more than 300 nongovernmental organizations of the country and contributes a lot to the protection of civil society.

Her activity is related to the problems of Kyrgyz Republic. Under her leadership have been realized a range of projects including on gender problems, the defense of rights of imprisoned children and women, protection of environment and ecological safety lives of the population located near the objects with radioactive withdrawals.

Her organization is the part of several National Commissions, such as National Council on question of gender equity under the Administration president of Kyrgyz Republic, Commission on questions of ethics of official employees and so on.

She participated in elaboration of large strategic programs of the country such as CDF (complex principles of a development), NSPR-1 (National Strategy of Poverty Reduction), NSPR-2, carrying out of the international actions such as international forum on "Strategy of a struggle against terrorism: political and legal mechanisms" in collaboration with the OSCE center in Bishkek and the Agency of political researches (Kazakhstan).

Totayim is one of the developers of the state program on realization of children's rights «Generation Next», international conference on "Enhancing security and stability in Central Asia: Strengthening Comprehensive efforts" in collaboration with the OSCE center in Bishkek, national forum "War and harmony are the principles of the development of a society" in collaboration with Assembly of Kyrgyzstan and so on.

She has state and international public awards. Married, mother of three children

The author of scientific articles, published in magazine « News from higher educational establishments » in 2004 on themes: « Women in a politics », « Strategy of a gender education », « Religious studies and theology: to a problem of demarcation of objects of research”

Uniyal V. P.

Dr. V. P. Uniyal, Scientist associated with the department of landscape level planning and management, Wildlife Institute of India, Dehradun, has obtained his Ph. D. in Zoology from Kurukshetra University, Haryana in 1988. His research interests are in ecological studies in mountain ecosystem. He had been associated with the Great Himalayan National Park, Kullu, Himachal Pradesh and designed a long term ecological monitoring protocol for the park. He has conducted studies of Naval Zone invertebrates in Indian Trans Himalayan region. He has participated in Nanda Devi ecological expedition and documented ecological status of the park. Presently he is supervising ecological studies at landscape level in protected regions of terai conservation area and Shivalik mountains.

Uniyal Bhagwati

Dr. (Mrs) Bhagwati Uniyal, Social Scientist, associated with NAVDANYA, has obtained her Ph.D on Impact of Modernization on Urban Women of Himachal Pradesh, from HNB Garhwal University Srinagar, Garhwal in 2001. She has been conducting studies on empowering rural women through natural and social resource management, socio-economic status and documenting indigenous knowledge of medicinal plants used by rural women of Uttarakhand Himalaya.

The Honorable Olene Smith Walker

Olene Smith Walker was Utah's 15th (and first female) governor. Walker was born in Ogden, Utah. She received her bachelor's, master's, and doctorate degrees from Brigham Young University, Stanford University, and the University of Utah respectively. She is married to Myron Walker and is the mother of seven children and grandmother of 25 grandchildren.

Walker's political background includes eight years in the state legislature including a term as Majority Whip. She founded the Salt Lake Education Foundation and served as its director. She also served as director of the Utah Division of Community Development. She has chaired the Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice, the Utah State Housing Coordinating Committee, the Governor's Commission on Child Care, and the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors.

She assumed the office of Governor of the State of Utah after former governor Mike Leavitt resigned his office to serve as Administrator of the EPA and later as Secretary of Health and Human Services. Olene Walker was the first female governor to be sworn in by a female Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, Christine Durham.

Ward Carol

Carol Ward, associate professor of sociology at Brigham Young University, has a PhD from the University of Chicago (1992). Her work addresses issues related to the sociology of education, social change and development among rural populations, particularly American Indian communities in the United States and indigenous groups of the Ouelessebougou region of Mali. Ward has written about American Indian education issues at both the secondary and college levels, and the impact of development projects on women, families and communities in Mali, West Africa. Most recently she published Native Americans in the School System: Family, Community, and Academic Achievement, AltaMira Press (2005) and “Meaningful Learning? Gendered Experiences with an NGO Sponsored Literacy Program in Rural Mali” (2006). Her current research involves assessing the effectiveness of reforms in math and science instruction at the tribal college of the Northern Cheyenne Nation in Montana. Other research projects are examining the impact of after school program participation on elementary and middle student performance in several Provo School District schools, and the effectiveness of innovative teaching strategies recently implemented in several types of primary schools serving rural and urban students in Mali.

Wilkerson Julie

Julie Wilkerson is a senior student at UVSC majoring in behavioral science. She is interested in the human condition and how humanity is oppressed by various governments. She is also interested in gender studies having had a class last semester focusing on the objectification and repression of women. She is interested in how women of various nations have overcome these hardships and managed to create equality. Anthropology classes she has taken have also sparked her interest in the extent to which societies and cultures differ. Julie looks forward to exploring how different cultures deal with various gender issues around the globe.

Willis Garth

Garth Willis is a Ph.D. student at the University of Minnesota in Comparative and International Development Education with a focus on youth policy. He has 8 years experience in Central Asia in the fields of International Education, Youth Program Development, and Integrating ICT into Education, and Mountaineering. While based in Kyrgyzstan he developed computer training programs for students and teachers and later administered US student exchange programs. In Tajikistan, Garth implemented the US State Department Connectivity Internet in schools program from project design, to school selection, installation of technical equipment, training, and creation of online education content. As well as his work with formal organizations, he started his own non-profit, the Alpine Fund, that works with at-risk youth through education programs and mountain adventures in Kyrgyzstan. His current research involves reviewing the use of Internet for education in schools in rural areas. Immediately after the Women of the Mountains conference he will travel to Mexico City to visit schools in mountainous regions outside of the capital city.

Wilson David R.

David R. Wilson is Assistant Professor of History and American Indian Studies at Utah Valley State College. He holds a B.A. and M.A. from the University of Kansas in Classics, and a Ph.D. in History from Brigham Young University. He is a former faculty member and administrator of Chief Dull Knife College, the community college of the Northern Cheyenne Tribe in southeastern Montana. His research focuses on community theory, emphasizing the modern energy boomtowns of the American West, and on the history of the Northern Cheyenne Indians in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. He is an advisor to the Northern Cheyenne Tribal History Project of Chief Dull Knife College, and is a member of the Rural Sociological Society.

Woodward Scott R.

Scott R. Woodward is currently the President and Chief Scientific Officer for the Sorenson Molecular Genealogy Foundation and the Principal Investigator for the Molecular Genealogy Research Project. He received his Ph.D. degree in genetics from Utah State University in 1984. He did postdoctoral work in molecular genetics at the Howard Hughes Medical Institute at the University of Utah. While at the University of Utah he discovered a genetic marker used for the identification of carriers and the eventual discovery of the gene for cystic fibrosis. He was also involved with the identification of other gene markers for colon cancer and neurofibromatosis. From 1989 to 2005, he was a faculty member of the microbiology department at Brigham Young University (BYU). While at BYU he has been involved with the Seila, Egypt excavation team, directing the genetic and molecular analysis of Egyptian mummies, both from a commoners' cemetery and from Egyptian Royal mummies. His research interests include the reconstruction of ancient and modern genealogies using DNA techniques with samples from all over the world, the tracing of human population movements by following gene migrations (including both Old and New World populations) and the DNA analysis of ancient manuscripts including the Dead Sea Scrolls. He has been the Scholar in Residence at the BYU Center for Near Eastern Studies in Jerusalem and a visiting professor at Hebrew University. His work has been featured both nationally and internationally on numerous programs including Good Morning America, Discovery and the Learning Channels. He is married to the former Ronda Ferrell and they are the parents of four sons and a daughter. They currently make their home in Alpine, Utah.

Woodworth Warner

Warner Woodworth is a social entrepreneur and professor of organizational behavior at the Marriott School, Brigham Young University. He has been a consultant to major corporations and unions, as well as to local, national and international governments. Ten books of his research have been published, along with over 180 articles, chapters, and monographs, many of which focus on women and social capital in the informal economy, microcredit and NGOs. He has led the movement to prepare a new generation of college-age global change agents for fighting poverty. Using his courses and the university as a social enterprise incubator, he has spun off over forty humanitarian projects in the past 15 years--providing capacity-building mechanisms such as literacy, healthcare, microfinance, appropriate technology, worker-owned co-ops, etc. Two grew into full-scale NGOs, HELP International and Empowering Nations, that have mobilized some 700 students from numerous universities in service to the Third World poor. Over the last decade Warner has been a founder, board chair, and/or director of 15 other NGOs that in 2006 alone raised $10 million and trained more than 210,000 microentrepreneurs in small business skills. These organizations now have a borrower client base in excess of a million individuals, most of whom are women. They receive microloans to establish income-generating family microenterprises that build self-reliance in 22 countries. Warner has received more than two dozen awards for his teaching, research, and humanitarian work from across the USA, and been featured extensively in the media, both domestic and international. He holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan, and has been a visiting scholar at several international institutions. As an advisor to numerous worldwide organizations seeking to foster civil society, Warner's mission is that of a catalyst to strengthen the emerging Third Sector and mentor a new generation of young social innovators.

Zucca Michela

Born in 1964 she has graduated in History at University of Milan and then she has deepened the topic of "Human Ecology" in Paris, Barcelona, Padoa and with long permanence in Central and South America. Since 1993 has dealt with the issues of local development in collaboration with Centre of Alpine Ecology (CEA) and other Institutions. She has been Project manager of the EU Project RECITE II "Learning Sustainability" (1998-2002). From July 2003 she is involved in the EU Project INTERREG IIIC "European Network of Village Tourism". Since 2001 she is consultant of the European Union for initiatives in the field of Culture, Learning (especially "Leonardo") and Environment (member of the panel of experts of the European Environment Agency). Since 2003 she is in the leading group of the "Gender" issue of the UN FAO programme called "Mountain Partnership".